

Spring Break Stupidity

During a little spring break idiocy, a couple of dim-witted dodos came up with the great idea you see demonstrated here. Their only volunteer was a recent physics-major dropout ... a guy named Stu Pidd.

Ol' Stu had just guzzled down a few brewskis and was feelin' ultra-invincible. So he plopped down on his mini-motorcycle and clamped his hand onto the undercarriage of this jacked-up pickup truck to go on a quick ride.

Hey Stu, I need to tell you something important ... what you did was really stupid. Perhaps you don't realize it, but you were half a wobble away from becoming road-kill ... as in splat ... as in dead.

Folks ... alcohol has many effects ... one of which can be the inability to make intelligent decisions. If you're going to go out drinking, make sure you've got someone there who is sober, and will keep you from crossing the line. Kinda like designated drivers ... except we'll call them "designated dumb-idea deflectors."